• Does your dog have separation anxiety? Yes___ No___

• If your dog has separation anxiety, is it moderate to severe? Yes___ No___

Moderate to severe separation anxiety cannot be alleviated even in the most social environment. While we do spend time with every dog, we cannot be with each one of them at every moment. Dogs with this condition will spend much of their time looking for their owners, pacing, not wanting to eat or rest despite our best efforts to comfort and distract them. This is not healthy for them physically or emotionally. One dog's anxiety also spreads nervous energy to our other furry guests causing upset. If your dog suffers from separation anxiety, this may not be the best option for him/her.
